A somewhat hidden little gem, Drain Pipe can have great untracked snow when it has been skied off in other areas.

Todd Casey
Casebox - Expert Skier
Skiing is a dynamic sport where the playing field is ever changing, be sure to have left yourself the ability to be able to adjust your balance on the fly.

Kelton Lovell
KLove007 - Beginner Boarder
Union Park is my favorite place to learn as it's not crowded and the views are amazing.

Kimberly Nicoletti
PowGirl - Expert Skier
Don't just follow the most obvious route down. Take a hard right near the bottom of Sierra, and hit the powder people miss between Sluice and Union Gap.

Alexis Keeney
zu_keeney - Park Skier
This hidden gem is ideal for those looking to learn a new jump trick on the jump line, or perfecting their rail tricks on an always creative set-up!

Jamie Baker
AvyDog - Expert Skier
Planning to ride the Tucker Cat? Be at the cat pickup before noon and have a ski/board carry system and some water.

Claudine Norden
CFYL970 - Intermediate Boarder
Hallelujah for Hallelujah! This stash is good for a few runs after the rest of the fresh powder gets tracked up. Traverse to the top of Hallelujah and drop down, along the fence for some soft bumps and flowy riding!

Sport a Skid Lid! - Where's your lid? Wearing a helmet is in style, just look around! Be smart and ski safely - a helmet gives you an edge at riding. Slip water throughout the day for best results.

Practice Bionance - It's more fun with two and more safe. Always ski with a friend in the bowls, free areas and it's the best to hang with them anywhere on the mountain.

Go Wet Yourself - When in the high country, you unknowingly will become dehydrated very quickly. If you wait until you're thirsty, it's too late. You should consume 24 ounces of water for every 3 hours of skiing/riding. Slip water throughout the day for best results.
